Subject: Street party on Maple Road – can you help?

Hi Mr Lindqvist,

I hope you're well and that your knee is feeling better after the operation. I'm writing because a few of us on Maple Road have decided to organise a street party on Saturday 14th June, and we'd love you to be part of it.

The idea came from Fatima at number 12. She pointed out that although many of us have lived here for years, we hardly know each other. Some new families have moved in recently too, and a party seems like a friendly way to welcome them. The council has already given us permission to close the road to traffic from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

We're planning to put tables down the middle of the street and ask everyone to bring some food to share. There will be games for the children, and Kenji from number 3 has offered to play music. If it rains, the school at the end of the road has said we can use its hall.

I know you used to be a carpenter, so I wondered if you might have any ideas for making a simple stage for the music. You wouldn't need to build anything yourself, of course – just give us some advice. Also, do you still have those folding chairs in your garage? We could really use them.

There's a short planning meeting at my house next Thursday at 7 p.m. Don't worry if you can't make it – I'll drop round afterwards and tell you what we decided.

Best wishes,

Hana (number 8)

A Quieter Kind of Sunday

Two years ago, the town of Valmont tried something unusual. On the first Sunday of every month, cars were banned from the town centre between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Many residents were against the idea at first. Shop owners worried that customers would stay away, and some drivers complained that they would not be able to get to their homes.

However, the experiment has turned out to be more popular than anyone expected. On car-free Sundays, the streets fill with cyclists, families with pushchairs and people on roller skates. Local musicians perform in the main square, and cafés put extra tables outside. "It feels like a completely different town," says Rosa Ferreira, who has lived in Valmont for thirty years. "You can actually hear the birds."

The town council says that air pollution in the centre falls by around 40% on these days. Surprisingly, many shops have also benefited. Because people walk slowly and look around, they often go into shops they would normally drive past. Ibrahim Nasser, who owns a bookshop near the square, says his Sunday sales have almost doubled.

Not everyone is happy, though. Some older residents say that it is difficult for them to reach the centre without a car, even though the council provides a free electric minibus. Others think the town should go further and make the centre car-free every weekend.

The council is now asking residents for their opinions. A decision about the future of the scheme is expected later this year.

8. Which would be the best alternative title for the article?
   A Why Valmont Needs More Car Parks
   B Older Residents Protest Against a New Bus
   C A Monthly Experiment That Changed a Town Centre
   D How to Open a Successful Bookshop

9. What were shop owners worried about before the first car-free Sunday?
   A That cyclists would damage the streets
   B That musicians would be too noisy
   C That they would have to open on Sundays
   D That fewer customers would come

10. In paragraph 2, 'has turned out to be' is closest in meaning to _____.
    A has finally proved to be
    B has refused to be
    C has stopped being
    D has pretended to be

11. Why have some shops sold more on car-free Sundays?
    A Prices are lower on these days
    B The council gives shoppers free vouchers
    C People walking past notice shops they usually ignore
    D Shops stay open later than usual

12. What does Rosa Ferreira's comment 'You can actually hear the birds' suggest?
    A The town centre is usually noisy because of traffic
    B Valmont has more birds than other towns
    C She does not like the street musicians
    D The town has recently planted many trees

13. According to paragraph 4, how do opinions differ about the scheme?
    A Everyone agrees that the minibus should be free
    B Shop owners want to stop the scheme, but cyclists want to keep it
    C Older residents want car-free weekends, but younger ones do not
    D Some people find it hard to reach the centre, while others want more car-free days

14. What is happening with the scheme at the moment?
    A It has been cancelled
    B It will happen every weekend from next month
    C The council is collecting residents' views before deciding
    D The council has bought more electric minibuses

The Dinner

Sami had been planning the dinner for weeks. It was the first time Leila's parents were coming to his flat, and he wanted everything to be perfect. He had chosen a recipe for a fish dish with lemon and herbs, and he had practised it twice the weekend before.

At half past six, an hour before the guests were due, he put the potatoes in the oven and began to prepare the sauce. Then, without warning, the lights went out. The fridge stopped humming, and the oven went silent. Sami looked out of the window. The whole street was dark.

He called the electricity company, but a recorded message said the power would not be back for at least three hours. Sami sat down on the kitchen floor and put his head in his hands. What would Leila's parents think of him now?

When Leila arrived with her parents, she found him lighting candles. "We have a small problem," he said, trying to smile. To his surprise, Leila's father laughed. "This reminds me of our first year of marriage," he said. "We had no electricity for a week!"

In the end, they ate bread, cheese, tomatoes and olives by candlelight, and Leila's mother told stories about her childhood in the countryside. Nobody mentioned the fish. At ten o'clock, just as they were leaving, the lights came back on.

"Next time," said Leila's father, shaking Sami's hand, "you can cook the fish. But I'm not sure it will be as good as tonight."

15. Why was the dinner so important to Sami?
    A It was Leila's birthday
    B Leila's parents were visiting his flat for the first time
    C He was cooking fish for the first time
    D He was celebrating a new job

16. What went wrong at half past six?
    A The oven broke while the potatoes were inside
    B Sami realised he had forgotten to buy the fish
    C The guests arrived an hour early
    D The electricity went off in the whole street

17. How did Sami feel after he called the electricity company?
    A Relieved and calm
    B Worried and hopeless
    C Angry with Leila
    D Bored and tired

18. Why did Leila's father laugh when he saw the candles?
    A He thought Sami was joking
    B He didn't like fish
    C The situation reminded him of something from his own past
    D He knew the lights would come back soon

19. What did Sami and his guests do during the evening?
    A They went to a restaurant
    B They waited until ten o'clock to cook the fish
    C They helped Sami repair the oven
    D They ate simple food and listened to stories

20. What does Leila's father's final comment suggest?
    A He was disappointed not to eat the fish
    B He enjoyed the evening despite the problem
    C He never wants to visit Sami again
    D He thinks Sami is a bad cook

Erklärungen

1. B – Hana schreibt, dass sie sich sehr freuen würden, wenn er beim Fest dabei wäre, und bittet ihn dann um Rat und um seine Stühle.
2. C – Fatima wies darauf hin, dass viele Nachbarn sich „hardly know each other" – sich also kaum kennen.
3. B – Die Schule hat angeboten, dass sie bei Regen ihre Aula nutzen dürfen.
4. D – Sie bittet um Ideen für eine einfache Bühne und fragt, ob er seine Klappstühle noch hat.
5. A – Sie erwähnt seine kürzliche Knieoperation – sie möchte also wahrscheinlich nicht, dass er schwer arbeitet.
6. B – „Drop round" bedeutet, jemanden kurz und ungezwungen zu Hause zu besuchen.
7. A – Die Stadtverwaltung hat genehmigt, die Straße von 11 bis 18 Uhr für den Verkehr zu sperren.
8. C – Der gesamte Artikel beschreibt die monatlichen autofreien Sonntage und ihre Auswirkungen auf die Innenstadt.
9. D – Die Ladenbesitzer befürchteten, „that customers would stay away" – also dass die Kundschaft ausbleiben würde.
10. A – „Turn out to be" beschreibt, wie sich etwas am Ende herausstellt, oft unerwartet.
11. C – Die Leute gehen langsam und betreten Geschäfte, an denen sie sonst mit dem Auto vorbeifahren würden.
12. A – Das Wort „actually" deutet darauf hin, dass man an normalen Tagen die Vögel wegen des Verkehrslärms nicht hören kann.
13. D – Einige ältere Bewohner finden den Zugang schwierig, während andere die Innenstadt an jedem Wochenende autofrei haben möchten.
14. C – Die Stadtverwaltung bittet um Meinungen, und eine Entscheidung wird für später in diesem Jahr erwartet.
15. B – Leilas Eltern kamen zum ersten Mal in seine Wohnung; den Fisch hatte er bereits zweimal zur Probe gekocht.
16. D – Das Licht ging aus, und Sami sah, dass die ganze Straße dunkel war.
17. B – Er saß mit dem Kopf in den Händen auf dem Boden und machte sich Sorgen, was ihre Eltern denken würden.
18. C – Er sagte, es erinnere ihn an sein erstes Ehejahr, als sie eine Woche lang keinen Strom hatten.
19. D – Sie aßen Brot, Käse, Tomaten und Oliven, während Leilas Mutter Geschichten erzählte.
20. B – Mit der Bemerkung, der Fisch sei vielleicht nicht „as good as tonight", zeigt er, dass der Abend für ihn etwas Besonderes war.

Hinweise für Lehrkräfte: Setzen Sie den Test als Lernzielkontrolle mit Zeitvorgabe oder als Unterrichtsaufgabe ein und lassen Sie die Lernenden ihre Antworten anschließend in Partnerarbeit besprechen. Viele Fragen zielen auf typische Schwierigkeiten auf B1-Niveau: Antwortoptionen, die Wörter aus dem Text aufgreifen, aber die Bedeutung verändern, das Verwechseln von Namen und Details sowie das wörtliche Verstehen von Phrasal Verbs und idiomatischen Wendungen. Als Anschlussaufgabe können die Lernenden eine Antwort auf Hanas E-Mail schreiben oder einen kurzen Meinungstext dazu verfassen, ob es in ihrer Stadt autofreie Tage geben sollte.
