Answer key – Present Perfect (ever, never, just, already, yet) – Worksheet 1

Exercise 1: Complete the sentences

1. eaten

The past participle of 'eat' is 'eaten'.

2. ridden

The past participle of 'ride' is 'ridden'.

3. has just finished

Use has + just + past participle with she.

4. have already bought

'Already' goes between have and the past participle 'bought'.

5. hasn't called

Negative: has not (hasn't) + past participle; 'yet' comes at the end.

6. have never seen

'Never' goes between have and the past participle 'seen'.

7. has just written

The past participle of 'write' is 'written'.

8. started

Regular verbs add -ed to form the past participle.

Exercise 2: Choose the right word

9. ever

Use 'ever' in questions about experiences in your life.

10. yet

Use 'yet' at the end of negative sentences.

11. never

'Never' means 'not at any time in my life'.

12. already

'Already' shows something happened before now, maybe earlier than expected.

13. just

'Just' shows something happened a very short time ago.

14. ever

Use 'ever' to ask about experiences.

15. yet

Use 'yet' at the end of questions about something we expect to happen.

16. never

'Never' makes the sentence negative: he has no experience of it.

Exercise 3: Rewrite the sentences

17. She hasn't finished her lunch yet.

Negative: hasn't + past participle, with 'yet' at the end.

18. Have they arrived at the hotel yet?

In questions, have comes before the subject and 'yet' goes at the end.

19. Have you ever visited London?

'Ever' goes between the subject and the past participle.

20. I have never seen this film.

'Never' goes between have and the past participle.

21. He has already cleaned his room.

'Already' usually goes between has and the past participle.

22. We have just had dinner.

'Just' goes between have and the past participle.

23. Has Sam done his homework yet?

Put has before the subject and 'yet' at the end.

Exercise 4: Put the words in order

24. Have you ever touched a snake?

Question order: Have + subject + ever + past participle.

25. I have already washed the dishes.

'Already' usually comes between have and the past participle.

26. The concert hasn't started yet.

'Yet' goes at the end of negative sentences.

27. Kate has just come home.

'Just' comes between has and the past participle.

28. We have never seen snow.

'Never' comes between have and the past participle.

29. Have you read the book yet?

Question order with 'yet' at the end.

Exercise 5: Find and correct the mistake

30. She has never driven a car.

Use the past participle 'driven', not the past simple 'drove'.

31. Have you ever seen a whale?

The present perfect needs the past participle 'seen'.

32. They haven't arrived yet.

Use 'yet', not 'already', in negative sentences.

33. He has just finished his breakfast.

Use the past participle 'finished'.

34. I have already done the shopping.

'Yet' is used in negatives and questions; in positive sentences use 'already' or 'just'.

35. We have already seen that film.

Use the past participle 'seen', not 'saw'.

36. Tom has just left the office.

Use 'has' with he, she, it and a single name.

37. Have you ever been to Australia?

The present perfect question starts with 'Have', not 'Did'.

Notes for teachers: Before you start, review the form have/has + past participle and drill common irregular participles (been, seen, eaten, written, bought). Typical mistakes are using the past simple form instead of the participle (have went), using 'already' in negatives instead of 'yet', and putting the adverb in the wrong position. As a follow-up, learners write five 'Have you ever...?' questions and interview a partner, then report back using never, already and yet.
