Ejercicio 5: Encuentra y corrige el error

29. She is very sensitive and cries easily when people criticise her.
    Sensitive significa «que se ofende o se afecta fácilmente»; sensible significa «sensato, con buen juicio».
30. Our history teacher is so boring. His lessons are always the same.
    Boring describe a una persona que hace que los demás se aburran.
31. Jack is very impatient when he has to wait in a queue.
    El prefijo negativo de patient es im-.
32. Emma is a very honest person.
    Delante de un sustantivo necesitamos el adjetivo honest, no el sustantivo honesty.
33. It was very generous of you to pay for dinner.
    Se dice 'generous of you' para describir la acción de alguien.
34. Our neighbours are very friendly and always say hello.
    Necesitamos el adjetivo friendly, no el sustantivo friend.

Ejercicio 6: Ordena las palabras

35. She is the most reliable person I know.
    Estructura del superlativo: the most + adjetivo + sustantivo.
36. My grandmother is always cheerful.
    'Always' va después del verbo 'be'.
37. It was very thoughtful of you.
    Estructura: It was + adjetivo + of you.
38. He is too shy to speak in class.
    Estructura: too + adjetivo + to + infinitivo.
39. She is not patient enough to be a teacher.
    'Enough' va después del adjetivo.
40. I like people who are easy-going.
    Una oración de relativo con 'who' describe a las personas.

Notas para el profesor: Empiece por el ejercicio de relacionar para comprobar que se entiende el significado y pase después a las tareas de contexto y de formación de palabras. Los alumnos suelen confundir sensible/sensitive y bored/boring, y olvidan que 'kind/generous/thoughtful' van con 'of you', mientras que 'nice/rude/polite' van con 'to'. Como actividad de ampliación, pida que, por parejas, describan a un familiar o a un amigo con cinco adjetivos de la ficha y den un ejemplo de su comportamiento para cada uno.
